

Telvent receives the Andalusian Award of Excellence

Madrid, November 10, 2004 – Telvent (Nasdaq TLVT), the Global RealTime IT Company, announced today that it has received the "V Andalusian Award of Excellence", which was presented by the Department of Employment and Technological Development of the Andalusian Assembly

The Andalusian Award of Excellence was founded in 2000 to distinguish and recognize those companies that have made remarkable contributions to the economic and industrial development of Andalusia, through the application of management systems based on international norms and the EFQM model of Excellence.

Since the founding of the Award, Telvent has responded to all calls for entry, resulting in a finalist position in 2000 with a "Special Mention for Research and Industrial Development", and also in 2002 with a "Special Mention for Best Practices in Process Management".

In addition to the public recognition that this distinction entails, Telvent has obtained, over the years, objective and independent evaluation of its "strong points" and "opportunities for improvement" with respect to the EFQM model of Excellence, by means of an "Evaluation Report" of its candidacy for the Award.

These reports have contributed, in a very relevant way, to the process of continuous improvement that has lead to Telvent's being awarded the "V Andalusian Award of Excellence" under the category of "Great Companies".
